

All Together Now: 4 Keys to Better Teacher Engagement

Good schools require passionate teachers who are engaged in their work, curious about new ideas, and committed to creating better learning environments for their students. If teachers aren't motivated to put forth their best effort, how can students be motivated to do the same?

Yet, teacher engagement is a serious problem in education. Within their first five years on the job, between 40% and 50% of teachers leave the profession, according to a Gallup report. In fact, roughly half a million U.S. teachers either move or leave the profession altogether each year, costing schools up to $2.2 billion annually, the Alliance for Excellent Education says.

$2.2B

The cost of teacher
attrition
to U.S. schools

SOURCE: Alliance for Excellent Education

Want to learn more about teacher engagement? Read on.

www.K12insight.com  @K12insight

K12 Insight 